Follow-up: application declines by channel and evidence

Hi team,

Credit Risk needs to know whether recorded decline reasons are consistent with affordability, documentation and workflow evidence.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use January 2023 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. Failure anecdotes are beginning to drive decisions, although retries and late posting may be making the problem look larger than the affected-customer population.

Can you test these explanations rather than choosing one at the start?
- decline codes align with application facts
- channel differences indicate process inconsistency
- generic reasons are masking multiple causes

The decision is which policy rules, reason codes or quality checks need revision. Please give us a model-ready table, data dictionary and an honest baseline.

You should be able to build the evidence from the latest closed loan files available by the request date, including affordability, pricing and origination risk fields; monthly customer and KYC snapshots; monthly account snapshots, status events, limits, product enrolments and signatories. The separate rejected-account file and loan decisions represent different processes; do not merge them without a defined key and business rule.

Thanks
