Do the decline reasons agree with the recorded application?

Morning,

I need help with something that sounds simple but probably is not.

Credit Risk needs to know whether recorded decline reasons are consistent with affordability, documentation and workflow evidence. Please start with the decision we need to make, then show whether the available evidence is strong enough to support it.

The questions I would ask in the room are:

1. What would we expect to see if decline codes align with application facts?
2. What evidence would instead support that channel differences indicate process inconsistency?
3. How do we rule out that generic reasons are masking multiple causes?

Please work towards which policy rules, reason codes or quality checks need revision. A useful output would be a working Excel file with the exception population and clear columns.

Use the latest closed loan files available by the request date, including affordability, pricing and origination risk fields; monthly customer and KYC snapshots; monthly account snapshots, status events, limits, product enrolments and signatories. One caution: The separate rejected-account file and loan decisions represent different processes; do not merge them without a defined key and business rule.
