What is underneath the headline growth?

Morning,

I need help with something that sounds simple but probably is not.

The headline activity story is positive, but EXCO cannot tell whether it reflects durable customer relationships or short-lived transaction volume. The operating teams agree that more journeys are failing; they disagree on whether the customer, the bank or a downstream party owns the failure.

The questions I would ask in the room are:

1. What would we expect to see if activity is concentrated in a small set of customers?
2. What evidence would instead support that service failures are creating volume without creating value?
3. How do we rule out that new accounts are becoming primary relationships?

We looked at a version of this before. For the March 2020 review, please show what changed and whether the earlier conclusion still holds. Please work towards where to invest and which headline measure should be retired from the management pack. A useful output would be a working Excel file with the exception population and clear columns.

Use monthly account snapshots, status events, limits, product enrolments and signatories; transaction-level timestamps, channels, amounts, statuses and error context; customer contacts, complaints and suggestions; campaign design and customer responses. One caution: Do not describe account activity as profitability; the data does not contain a full revenue and cost allocation.
