

Outlook

From	ruth.mahlangu@legal.counsel.keystonebank.co.za
To	analytics.retail@keystonebank.co.za, loan.products@keystonebank.co.za
Cc	treasury@keystonebank.co.za, compliance.retail@keystonebank.co.za
Sent	Mon, 20 Mar 2023 12:44:00 -0000

Follow-up: which bank was responsible at each point in the loan?

Hi all,

I may be joining dots that do not belong together, so please challenge the premise.

A loan participation question has exposed confusion about which bank originated, serviced and carried each risk share. Failure anecdotes are beginning to drive decisions, although retries and late posting may be making the problem look larger than the affected-customer population.

Could the answer be that servicing actions do not align with the stated role? Or are we actually seeing that the records clearly support the operating model? I also do not want us to miss the possibility that customer-facing activity is being attributed to the wrong institution.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use March 2023 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. The practical decision is which cases require document review and which are data-quality corrections. Please send a model-ready table, data dictionary and an honest baseline; I need the exceptions and counter-examples, not only an average.

Work from loan participation and servicing records available by the request date; the latest closed loan files available by the request date, including affordability, pricing and origination risk fields; debit-order mandates, collection dates, suspensions and cancellations; collections cases, promises to pay and recovery payments. The dataset records roles and activity but is not the signed legal agreement.

Regards