Follow-up: origination, servicing and risk ownership are being conflated

Hi team,

A loan participation question has exposed confusion about which bank originated, serviced and carried each risk share.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use March 2025 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. There is no confirmed problem yet; this is a request to test an assumption before it becomes policy.

Can you test these explanations rather than choosing one at the start?

- the records clearly support the operating model
- servicing actions do not align with the stated role
- customer-facing activity is being attributed to the wrong institution

The decision is which cases require document review and which are data-quality corrections. Please give us a control view with the exceptions, owner and reason each item was included.

You should be able to build the evidence from loan participation and servicing records available by the request date; the latest closed loan files available by the request date, including affordability, pricing and origination risk fields; debit-order mandates, collection dates, suspensions and cancellations; collections cases, promises to pay and recovery payments. The dataset records roles and activity but is not the signed legal agreement.

Thanks
