

Outlook

From	zanele.maseko@customer.experience.keystonebank.co.za
To	analytics.retail@keystonebank.co.za
Cc	compliance.retail@keystonebank.co.za, legal.counsel@keystonebank.co.za
Sent	Mon, 07 Sep 2020 10:10:00 -0000

A closed complaint may still be an open journey

Team,

Before this becomes another standing report, can we answer the real question?

Complaint status alone may overstate resolution when the same customer returns, the transaction remains unresolved or the account closes. The possible stories are that resolution notes are generic, that resolved complaints do not recur, or that specific categories lead to repeat contact or attrition.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use September 2020 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. There are enough data exceptions to make a polished average dangerous; preserve the unresolved cases.

Please prepare a model-ready table, data dictionary and an honest baseline. The output must help us decide which complaint outcomes need quality review and which root causes need fixing.

Data available: customer contacts, complaints and suggestions; transaction-level timestamps, channels, amounts, statuses and error context; monthly account snapshots, status events, limits, product enrolments and signatories.

Please state the limitation plainly: The analysis can identify recurrence and later behaviour, not customer satisfaction that was never recorded.

Thanks