Follow-up: account opening is not the end of onboarding

Team,

Before this becomes another standing report, can we answer the real question?

Branch Network wants to separate productive onboarding from accounts that never progress beyond opening and initial deposit. The possible stories are that card or online activation friction delays use, that first useful activity varies by branch, or that some customer types need assisted follow-up.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use January 2022 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. Several teams are reporting more failed or retried activity than they expected, but they do not agree on the cause.

Please prepare a short decision pack with no more than five slides and an attached evidence table. The output must help us decide where branch coaching or onboarding process changes are needed.

Data available: monthly customer and KYC snapshots; monthly account snapshots, status events, limits, product enrolments and signatories; available initial-deposit records up to the request date; transaction-level timestamps, channels, amounts, statuses and error context; ATM attempts, host responses, PIN attempts, blocked-card state and latency.

Please state the limitation plainly: Do not rank branches on raw volume without controlling for opening month, customer mix and account type.

Thanks
