

Outlook

From	zanele.maseko@customer.experience.keystonebank.co.za
To	analytics.retail@keystonebank.co.za
Cc	compliance.retail@keystonebank.co.za, legal.counsel@keystonebank.co.za
Sent	Tue, 13 Sep 2022 14:07:00 -0000

Follow-up: A closed complaint may still be an open journey

Hi team,

Complaint status alone may overstate resolution when the same customer returns, the transaction remains unresolved or the account closes.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use September 2022 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. The operating teams agree that more journeys are failing; they disagree on whether the customer, the bank or a downstream party owns the failure.

Can you test these explanations rather than choosing one at the start?

- resolved complaints do not recur
- resolution notes are generic
- specific categories lead to repeat contact or attrition

The decision is which complaint outcomes need quality review and which root causes need fixing. Please give us a one-page finding note plus the underlying CSV for our own review.

You should be able to build the evidence from customer contacts, complaints and suggestions; transaction-level timestamps, channels, amounts, statuses and error context; monthly account snapshots, status events, limits, product enrolments and signatories. The analysis can identify recurrence and later behaviour, not customer satisfaction that was never recorded.

Thanks