The dispute has three timelines and they do not agree - 2024 control review

Morning,

I need help with something that sounds simple but probably is not.

A customer dispute cannot be assessed from the complaint text alone because authorisation, posting, reversal and contact dates differ. The operating teams agree that more journeys are failing; they disagree on whether the customer, the bank or a downstream party owns the failure.

The questions I would ask in the room are:

1. What would we expect to see if a bank-side delay caused the loss?
2. What evidence would instead support that the complaint outcome does not match the underlying evidence?
3. How do we rule out that the customer saw a temporary posting as final?

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use February 2024 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. Please work towards the evidence position and whether remediation should precede correspondence. A useful output would be a Power BI page with drill-through to a reproducible case list.

Use transaction-level timestamps, channels, amounts, statuses and error context; customer contacts, complaints and suggestions; ATM attempts, host responses, PIN attempts, blocked-card state and latency. One caution: Use statements only where they exist and do not invent merchant evidence or call recordings.

Regards
