Participation cash flows are not following the simple story - 2024 control review

Hi team,

Treasury and Lending need to understand whether originated, serviced and participated loans behave differently after booking.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use September 2024 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. There is no confirmed problem yet; this is a request to test an assumption before it becomes policy.

Can you test these explanations rather than choosing one at the start?

- risk share and customer behaviour are being confused
- servicing-bank arrangements create operational exceptions
- participated loans have different payment timing

The decision is whether participation terms, servicing controls or reporting need to change. Please give us a working Excel file with the exception population and clear columns.

You should be able to build the evidence from loan participation and servicing records available by the request date; the latest closed loan files available by the request date, including affordability, pricing and origination risk fields; transaction-level timestamps, channels, amounts, statuses and error context; debit-order mandates, collection dates, suspensions and cancellations; collections cases, promises to pay and recovery payments. The files support servicing and behavioural analysis, not external-bank accounting or legal settlement confirmation.

Thanks
