First login is not adoption - 2024 control review

Hi team,

Product needs to define successful channel adoption as sustained useful activity rather than enrolment or one event.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use November 2024 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. The discussion is currently being driven by anecdotes, and the teams involved are describing the same customers differently.

Can you test these explanations rather than choosing one at the start?

- adoption differs by product and customer need
- first successful use predicts continued use
- customers return to assisted channels after failure

The decision is which onboarding journey and success metric should change. Please give us a control view with the exceptions, owner and reason each item was included.

You should be able to build the evidence from monthly account snapshots, status events, limits, product enrolments and signatories; transaction-level timestamps, channels, amounts, statuses and error context; customer contacts, complaints and suggestions; ATM attempts, host responses, PIN attempts, blocked-card state and latency. Available data supports channel behaviour but not every app screen, click or abandoned session.

Thanks
