The first 30 days after a branch opening - 2024 control review

Hi team,

Branch Network wants to separate productive onboarding from accounts that never progress beyond opening and initial deposit.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use December 2024 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. There is no confirmed problem yet; this is a request to test an assumption before it becomes policy.

Can you test these explanations rather than choosing one at the start?

- card or online activation friction delays use
- some customer types need assisted follow-up
- first useful activity varies by branch

The decision is where branch coaching or onboarding process changes are needed. Please give us a short decision pack with no more than five slides and an attached evidence table.

You should be able to build the evidence from monthly customer and KYC snapshots; monthly account snapshots, status events, limits, product enrolments and signatories; available initial-deposit records up to the request date; transaction-level timestamps, channels, amounts, statuses and error context; ATM attempts, host responses, PIN attempts, blocked-card state and latency. Do not rank branches on raw volume without controlling for opening month, customer mix and account type.

Thanks
