Origination, servicing and risk ownership are being conflated - 2025 control review

Team,

Before this becomes another standing report, can we answer the real question?

A loan participation question has exposed confusion about which bank originated, serviced and carried each risk share. The possible stories are that customer-facing activity is being attributed to the wrong institution, that servicing actions do not align with the stated role, or that the records clearly support the operating model.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use May 2025 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. The discussion is currently being driven by anecdotes, and the teams involved are describing the same customers differently.

Please prepare a model-ready table, data dictionary and an honest baseline. The output must help us decide which cases require document review and which are data-quality corrections.

Data available: loan participation and servicing records available by the request date; the latest closed loan files available by the request date, including affordability, pricing and origination risk fields; debit-order mandates, collection dates, suspensions and cancellations; collections cases, promises to pay and recovery payments.

Please state the limitation plainly: The dataset records roles and activity but is not the signed legal agreement.

Thanks
