

Outlook

|      |                                                                        |
|------|------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| From | zanele.maseko@customer.experience.keystonebank.co.za                   |
| To   | analytics.retail@keystonebank.co.za                                    |
| Cc   | compliance.retail@keystonebank.co.za, legal.counsel@keystonebank.co.za |
| Sent | Thu, 10 Jul 2025 14:31:00 -0000                                        |

Resolved in the system, but resolved for the customer? - 2025 control review

---

Hi team,

Complaint status alone may overstate resolution when the same customer returns, the transaction remains unresolved or the account closes.

This has returned because the previous answer was useful but not strong enough to become a standing rule. Use July 2025 as the new evidence point rather than recycling the earlier conclusion. There is no confirmed problem yet; this is a request to test an assumption before it becomes policy.

Can you test these explanations rather than choosing one at the start?

- specific categories lead to repeat contact or attrition
- resolved complaints do not recur
- resolution notes are generic

The decision is which complaint outcomes need quality review and which root causes need fixing. Please give us a Power BI page with drill-through to a reproducible case list.

You should be able to build the evidence from customer contacts, complaints and suggestions; transaction-level timestamps, channels, amounts, statuses and error context; monthly account snapshots, status events, limits, product enrolments and signatories. The analysis can identify recurrence and later behaviour, not customer satisfaction that was never recorded.

Thanks